Patriotic Organizations Join In Planning Tribute to Nation's Dead PROGRAM

Services at Theatre Will Be Followed By March To Cemetery

G. A. R. VETERANS

Unusual Program Planned for Day

A large number of organizations are expected to take part in the observance of Memorial Day this year than ever before, according to Mrs. Mary Winters, chairman of the committee which is making arrangements for the program. The program will be participated in by the three veterans' organizations, the American Legion, the Spanish War Veterans, and the members of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, auxiliaries of the veterans' organizations and children from the various schools will also participate in the program and the parade.

The memorial address will be delivered by Rev. C. E. Kennedy, formerly pastor of the Mt. Carmel Catholic church of this city, and now administrator of St. Paul's church in San Francisco. Rev. Kennedy is well known here and he saw service in France as chaplain in the army and is an active member of the American Legion, his choice by the committee as the speaker on this occasion is most appropriate. The other ministers of the town will also participate in the program.

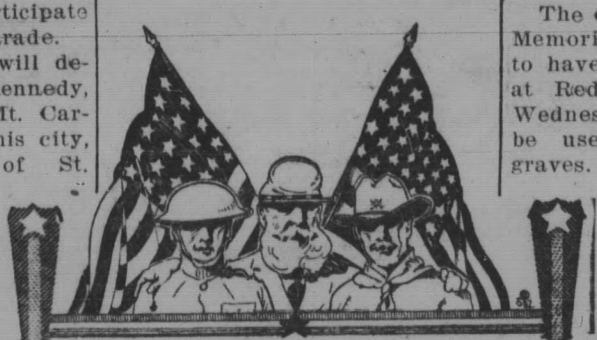

The program will be held at the Sequoia Theatre on Broadway and will begin at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon. It will be followed by a march to the cemetery and a short memorial service at the graves. The full program as announced this week by Mrs. Winters is as follows:

Opening Remarks..... Post Commander Frazier
General Logan's Orders No. 11
S. W. V. E. Hinman
Prayer..... Rev. Father Kavanaugh
San Carlos School
Gettysburg Address..... Clement Collins
Star Spangled Banner..... Robert Glynn

March to Cemetery
Sequoia High School Band
Grand Army
Spanish War Veterans
American Legion
Boy Scouts
Girl Scouts
Convent School Children
San Carlos School Children
Woman's Relief Corps
Auxiliary Spanish War Veterans
Auxiliary American Legion

At the Cemetery
Prayer..... Rev. C. E. Wining
Address to Unknown Dead..... Rev. Mr. Hamby
Reading..... Miss Inez Jamieson Taps.....

The committee in charge of the Memorial Day program would like to have donations of flowers left at Redwood City fire house on Wednesday morning, May 30 to be used in decorating soldiers' graves.

BUILDING HERE SHOWS ACTIVE GAIN IN AMOUNT

New Building Started On Upper Broadway

Daly Bros. began construction this week on a building on the north side of Broadway in the Perry tract for a Gilroy party. The building is to be of re-enforced concrete and will contain three stories. The estimated cost of this building is about $11,000.

It is expected that work will be started today on a building on the corner of the same block for C. A. Chaguetta will front on Broadway and the highway and will contain six stories. The building will occupy the last piece of ground in this tract with a frontage on Broadway. The estimated cost of construction will be $25,000.

Building is active on Broadway at present as Daly Bros. are also erecting a building near Washington street for A. J. Fromm which is now nearing completion, and the same contractors recently completed another on the south side of the same street, near the highway.

Work is being rushed on the new theatre building which will be occupied as soon as completed by the Sequoia Theatre and in the building adjoining it which will be occupied by the Woodworth store and by the Lock Drug Co.

Old Grocery Firm To Open Groceria

Stafford & Long, local grocers, will open a groceria next week at 635 Broadway, and will run this store on the cash and carry plan in addition to their long established credit groceria on Broadway and Whiskey street.

The groceria business of Stafford and Long is the oldest grocery firm in Redwood City, having been established 53 years ago by the late James Stafford, who conducted the same for many years. Following the death of James Stafford the business was carried on by two of his sons, George and Dan Stafford, under the name of Dan Stafford Bros. In 1917 Dan Stafford withdrew from the firm and the business was conducted by George Stafford. Later Percy Long purchased a half interest in the old firm, which has since been known as Stafford and Long.

Realizing that many of their friends prefer to buy on the cash and carry plan the groceria branch has been established to cater to this trade. A full line of vegetables will also be handled under the management of Barretti Bros. and Co. of the University Quality Market of Palo Alto. The proprietors have extended to the people of Redwood City an invitation to visit the new store and be shown about the establishment.

Small Grass Fire Results in Alarm

The fire department answered a summons from box 415 Wednesday to find a small grass fire at the intersection of Fulton street and Jefferson avenue. It was quickly extinguished and no damage was done. Due to the precautions being taken by the city in removing grass from vacant lots, the number of fire calls has been considerably reduced from those of previous years at this time of year.

Citizens Night At Sequoia Tonight

The second annual Citizen's Night will be observed at Sequoia Union High School Friday evening, May 25, opening with a short program of dramatics and music in the auditorium at 7:30. Afterwards the buildings will be open for public inspection and exhibits of the year's work in each department of the school will be shown.

There will be displays of the Mechanical Arts department, including tools, cabinet work, paintings and posters; experiments and equipment in the science departments; notebooks, charts, maps, etc. In English, History and Social Science classrooms. Blue prints and plans of the new high school buildings will constitute a special feature of the exhibits. C. L. Anderson, biology instructor, is chairman of the committee in charge of the entire affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Berndtsen of 435 Edgewood road left Wednesday for a visit to their former home in Vandruick, Denmark. Mr. and Mrs. Berndtsen are members of a party from Dania, a Danish organization of San Francisco, which is making a visit to their mother country. They will be gone for several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave L. Walter returned Monday from a week's vacation in the Yosemite Valley.

Miss Sadie Layng entertained a number of members of the Epworth League of the Wesley Methodist church of San Francisco at her home on El Camino Real Saturday evening.

Aldrome being established in Cloverdale.

Napa-Pope Valley farm center will erect new community hall.

Plan to Celebrate Year's Safety Record

The completion of a year at the plant of the Pacific Portland Cement Co. without a single accident, resulting in loss of time to any one of the workmen will be celebrated by a luncheon at the plant Saturday. Harold Powers, superintendent of the plant, has arranged a luncheon and program to take place at noon tomorrow.

A blue pennant signifying that no accidents have occurred at the plant has been flying over the building all during the year.

Several speakers have been secured for the event tomorrow.

Five Chinese Face Charge of Gambling

Five Chinese were arrested by Sheriff J. J. McGrath and a posse at Belmont last Saturday night on a charge of gambling. Those arrested were Ing Yung, Loy Hee, Wong Fu, Chew Pi, and Yung Fook. All have been released on payment of $100 each as cash bail except Yung Fook, whose bail was set at $150. They will appear before Judge J. McGrath of San Mateo today.

Mae DeKnight of Menlo Park was arrested the same evening by Sheriff McGrath and charged with having a slot machine in her possession. She was released on the payment of $50 cash bail.

Sequoia Graduates Show Ability In Art and Athletics

Not only does "Sequoia Victorious" pertain to students of the local high school but to graduates as well, eight of whom have won distinctions and honors during the past month; three scholastically and five athletically. Those who have attained high scholastic achievements are: Gerald Irving, '25, who has been attending the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco; and two honorable mentions at the close of the school term, one in drawing and a second in painting.

Honorable mention at the University of California graduation exercises was achieved by Erma Follette, '23, while Edith Barbour, '25, received honorable mention at the children's hospital graduation exercises. Only one scholarship and two honorable mentions were awarded.

Former Sequoia athletes have been continuing their pursuit of athletics at college receiving high honors as is shown by the facts that Bill Werder, '26, has received his freshman numeral at Stanford, Carl Mettler, '27, and Herman Mettler, '26, also have received their freshman numerals at Santa Clara, while Albert Terremere, '25, has received a block S. C.

In addition to breaking the record in the 100 yard dash, Jack Kellogg '24 has been elected captain of next year's track team at the University of Nevada.

Residents Protest Lumber Yard Site

The application of E. W. Magruder to make certain change in his lumber yard including the erection of a high fence about the premises, which was made before the board of trustees at a recent meeting, resulting in a number of protests from a number of residents of the district. These protests were filed in the form of a petition by Attorney A. J. Stehne with the city council Monday evening. Hearing on the matter will be had at a special meeting of the board Monday evening.

MUNICIPALLY OWNED PLANT MAKES MONEY

Redwood City Water Plant Shows Year's Profit

(By Capitol News Bureau)
Special to Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO, May 24—Redwood City's municipal waterworks was one of 152 city-owned water systems that finished the 1927 fiscal year on the right side of the ledger, according to reports filed with the state controller's office.

The Redwood City plant showed a gross operating profit for the year of $26,193.24.

Ordinary expenses of the plant totaled $28,809.33.

For the same period, ordinary receipts aggregated $62,502.57.

The Burlingame waterworks also came through the year successfully, with a gross profit of $14,046.09.

Due to imperfect accounting system employed by many cities in the state, Controller Ray L. Riley declared it was impossible to arrive at a true net profit.

The controller, however, plans to ask for the next legislature to remedy this defect by requiring that all cities keep uniform accounting systems for their municipal ownership ventures.

RED CROSS AID GIVEN FLOOD VICTIMS OF STATE

A Total of 250 Families
Received Help From National Mother

Exactly five weeks after having been requested by the Mayor of Sacramento to take charge of emergency relief and rehabilitation of the families forced out of their homes by the floods of March 25th and 26th, the American Red Cross on May 1st, brought its work to a close and rendered a report and accounting to the mayor and citizens relief committee.

In his report, Douglas H. Moore, assistant manager of the Pacific branch, who had charge of relief operations, stated that a total of 250 families were registered and, following complete and sympathetic investigation on the part of the Red Cross workers, all of these cases have been closed. Emergency relief and permanent rehabilitation was extended to 166 families. The remaining 84 families were either able to care for themselves or were not disaster sufferers.

Contributions to the Relief Fund as of May 1st, amounted to $16,036.24.

In extending emergency relief and permanent rehabilitation to the families that were found to be in need of Red Cross assistance a total of $15,858.74 has been committed—that is, either actually expended or has had Red Cross orders issued against it—leaving a balance of $177.50 to be used in such follow-up work in North Sacramento as may be necessary.

Of the amount committed, $2,184.23 covered the purchase, during the emergency period, of food blankets, bed linen, wearing apparel, etc., to replace that destroyed by flood waters. The sum of $13,674.51 has been expended or committed for permanent awards or appropriations to 146 families.

It is the purpose of the Red Cross in this disaster, as it is its long established practice in all disasters, to expend every penny of the funds restricted by the donors for this special purpose, namely, for the relief and rehabilitation of those who suffered in the flood.

The small remaining balance of $177.50, against which no Red Cross orders have as yet been issued, plus whatever contributions may subsequently be received, will be turned over to the Sacramento Chapter to be administered by it for relief in accordance with the disaster relief policy of the National organization.

In addition to the appropriation of $1,000 for relief, the National Red Cross has borne all administrative expenses in connection with the disaster. Therefore, every dollar contributed to the Relief Fund has been expended or relief purposes only. This contribution by the National organization was made possible because of the support which the Red Cross received last November when more than 4,000,000 people joined as members for 1928.

Two Local Boys Found in San Jose

Two Redwood City boys, Walter Robles, 15, and Frank Robles, 14, for whom a search has been made since their disappearance Sunday, were found in San Jose yesterday and have been returned to the detention home here.

The boys left the home of their aunt, Mrs. M. Robles, with whom they were making their home here. They said that they were going hunting and took a small rifle with them. When they failed to return Sunday night, Mrs. Robles became alarmed and notified the police.

The two boys were discovered in a cherry orchard near San Jose. With them was another boy, who was found to be Ernest Bentley, who has been sought by juvenile authorities of San Francisco for three weeks. The two Robles boys were taken into custody, but Bentley escaped. He was later found in Redwood City and was taken to the juvenile home. The other two boys were brought from San Jose yesterday afternoon.

High School Apparel Up to Local Boards

By ESTO BROUGHTON
Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, May 24—Whether Redwood City girls may go bare-legged to school or not is entirely up to the Redwood City school board, according to a statement issued today by William John Cooper, state superintendent of schools, who maintains it a matter of local determination.

Refusing to interfere in the recent shelled-shanks row kicked up in the Yuba City High School when four girls substituted shellac for silk hosiery in spite of the protest of the high school boys who threatened to coat their legs with fly-paper, Cooper quoted the school law to prove it was up to the local school board in every case.

"Cleanliness and neatness are the only requirements specified in the school code," according to Cooper, who cited the statute as follows: "All pupils who go to school without proper attention having been given to personal cleanliness or neatness of dress may be sent home to be properly prepared for school." Here the jurisdiction of the school authorities ends unless the dress, or the lack of it, interferes with the orderly procedure of school in the opinion of the school chief. And he declared that the local board is the judge of that.

What is proper for school clothing is entirely within the province of the parents of the students, according to the principal of the Yuba school. "It is up to the parents to dress their children suitably for the classroom," the Sutter county educator insisted.

Just where the personal liberty of the girls and their parents leaves off and such license begins as interferes with the orderly conduct of school work, it is the responsibility of the school board of each district to determine, Cooper reiterated.

Last Gym Class For Night School

Tuesday, May 29, will be the last meeting this spring of Sequoia Recreational Club. There will be no regular gym class, but a social hour in the library with refreshments, after which members may take in the events at the swimming pool on sports night.

HUGE 'CHUTE BRINGS PLANE DOWN SAFELY

Aviation History Made By County Aviators

One of the most interesting developments in the history of aviation was made this week by aviators of this county from the Johnson Flying School, near San Mateo in conjunction with Walter Varnes air mail contractor. This was the successful landing of an aeroplane from the height of 2500 feet by means of a huge parachute.

The plane was landed safely with a parachute measuring 75 feet in diameter. A larger 'chute is now in course of construction and an experiment will be made shortly in landing a larger type of plane. If these experiments prove as successful as the first has, it will be a big step toward making aviation more safe and dependable even than it is today.

Recently they met in Los Angeles, and Redwing suggested taking a walk. The first thing Princess Rose Marie knew, they were entering the marriage license bureau. "We might as well now as any other time," the princess agreed, and they signed on the dotted line.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

"Bigger and better" automobile plates for California in 1929, probably orange numbers on a black background, were decided upon by Frank G. Snook, chief of the state division of motor vehicles.

California will have a state fire prevention and suppression force of fifty men in the field by June 1 and most of the rangers and other forestry officials are already on duty. State Forester M. B. Pratt announced a few days ago.

Death has claimed Kern county's oldest native born resident, an Indian woman whose span of life there has passed the century mark. She was born in the canyon. The Indian woman's exact age is unknown, but her nephew, Chief Juan Lozada, says she was well over 100 years and that many believed her to be 127 years of age. Although she was the mother of several children, Mrs. Mendez survived all of them.

Journalists, the language of newspapermen, is invading the public schools. Not only will California's new series of language books employ cartoons suggestive of comic strips to enliven the pages, but the text matter itself will have a distinct newspaper flavor. There will be "lead" paragraphs such as are used in newspaper stories. Blackface type will be generously employed.

California's state department of public health a few days ago indulged in "baby talk" and there were 84,334 babies to talk about. That many brand new infants came into California homes during the last year, approximately 20 to every 1,000 persons in the state population. The baby total showed an increase of 1962 over that of 1926. And, more than that, the infant mortality rate for the year was kept down to 62.5 per 1,000 live births, the lowest in the history of California, according to the department's official vital statistics made public.

The present forty-mile speed limit on California highways as enforced by the state division of motor vehicles will be continued despite the ruling by a Fresno justice that fifty miles an hour is legal under certain conditions. This is the attitude of Frank G. Snook, chief of the state motor vehicles department. The interpretation the Fresno justice places on the motor vehicle act does not say the whole superstructure of speed legislation to tumble down, Snook says. Furthermore, he does not believe that the Fresno decision is of sufficient consequence to be appealed to a higher court.

Plans for a $40,000,000 initiative bond act to build the Westside highway through the San Joaquin Valley, ultimately providing a new San Francisco-Los Angeles connection, were disclosed last week before Governor Young. And Governor Young said that he "seriously doubted" whether the people of California will favor return to the bond issue method of financing road building. The proposed highway, as explained by W. R. McKay of Hanford, state crime commission member, and other backers of the plan would be approximately 400 miles long, extending between Tracy and Fillmore.

Dan Cupid took a punch right on the "button" from California's gin marriage law last year, marriages dropping off by 3,177 during 1927. This is shown by official figures announced by the state department of public health. Last year's marriage total was actually running ahead of 1926 until the law requiring a three-day declaration of marriage became effective, on July 29th. But during the closing five months of the year Cupid's couplings showed a decrease of approximately 5,000. For the year, marriages totaled 53,487 for a rate of 12.6 per thousand of population, against 56,664 marriages and a rate of 13.7 in 1926. There were 19,719 weddings in the state during the last five months of the year, as compared with 24,671 during the same period of 1926.

Francisco not only "knows how" educationally, but she has the dollars to back up her knowledge. The bay city has a greater wealth per pupil in the elementary and high schools than any other population center in California. Los Angeles county is the richest in the state, but a statistical distribution of wealth on a per capita basis among public school children places San Francisco far ahead of either the Los Angeles area or the East Bay district. The state department of education recently announced "true wealth per pupil" in the three big counties as follows: elementary schools—San Francisco, $34,413.53; Los Angeles, $30,207.30; Alameda, $19,149.87. High schools—San Francisco, $124,969.99; Los Angeles, $96,539.09; Alameda, $55,907.98.

California's bill for school books is experiencing a shrinkage, due to the work of the state printing office in their production, that the citizenry is going to learn of with much satisfaction. A cut of approximately 66.2 per cent in costs is not to be overlooked, with so many other places in which the saving can be utilized. The office has just completed the printing of 25,416 copies of arithmetic books, No. 1, at an average cost of 21 cents, the total being $5,336. At the publishers' quoted prices, these books would have cost the state more than $15,000.

Reports from bureaus of employment maintained by the universities of the country show that the University of Southern California has more students at work in full and part-time positions than any other institution of higher learning in the nation. During the past eight months 5,816 students have been placed in positions by the Bureau of Employment under the direction of R. Allen Behrendt. The University of California at Berkeley during a twelve months' period obtained work for 5,024 students. Stanford University officials stand for 2,905 students.

Degrees and certificates of graduation were granted 2,282 students at the University of California at the sixty-fifth annual commencement exercises held in the Memorial Stadium at Berkeley recently.

June 1 is the date set by the Boeing Air Transport, Inc., on which they will begin operation of new twelve-passenger planes between San Francisco and Sacramento. Three planes will go into service then and twelve more are planned to be put into service as soon as the need for them develops. This announcement was made recently by Maurice M. Smith, of the Boeing traffic department, before the Sacramento Ad Club.

California's total estimated daily average crude oil production increased 600 barrels during the week ended May 12, figures released by the American Petroleum Institute show. The total estimated daily average crude oil production for the week of the report was $22,900 barrels, compared with $22,300 barrels for the week ended May 5.

Stockton will be the next attraction for cruising enthusiasts following the Isleton festival of last week-end. The Stockton Water Carnival will be held May 26 and 27, in celebration of the completion of the valley's victory in its fight for a deep-water channel to the sea. An important feature of the affair will, of course, be races in the various outboard divisions. It is expected that a majority of the boats entered for the Isleton contests will be taken down the San Joaquin for the competition this week.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been lost to investors in the state in stock through activities of so-called loan and discount companies, according to the State Corporation Department a few days ago after a six week investigation into activities of such companies which, it is alleged, have been loaning from 50 to 80 cents on the dollar to holders of stocks. There are twenty-seven such concerns under investigation in the state.

Clara Phillips must spend five more years inside prison walls before she is eligible to parole. A formal ruling by Deputy Attorney General Charles A. Wetmore Jr. last week blasted the hammer-murderer's hope of leaving San Quentin this year. She had pinned her hopes to the 1927 law fixing new penalties for second degree murder and setting the minimum term for second degree murder at five years. In an effort to apply the provisions of the 1927 law to prisoners convicted prior to that date, the Legislature made the act retroactive. Clara Phillips has served five years of her sentence, and under the new law would be eligible for parole.

More than half the 4,288 population of San Quentin prison is made up of young men below thirty years of age, a survey of statistics shows. There are 2,297, the figures show. Average age of male prisoners is 32 years; that of females 35. In spite of the fact that scores of men have been sent out on parole since January 1, the population has increased by 445 since that date. White prisoners predominate in both male and female sections, with negroes second. There are 3,538 white prisoners, 307 negroes, 56 Chinese, 22 Japanese, 31 Indians, 6 Hawaiians, 23 Filipinos and 13 Hindus.

The statewide co-operative fight of Californians to secure federal money for adequately financing forest experimental work as a basis of conserving and developing the forests, one of California's greatest natural resources, has been won with the passage of the McNary-McSweeney forestry research bill in the House of Representatives. The passage of this bill by the House of Representatives marks the close of the legislative session of the bill, and the President's signature is definitely assured, due to the fact that his clear-listed the bill before it was passed by the Senate and House committees and the Senate. This forestry research bill gives to California the sum of $190,000 of federal money annually for the work of the California Forest Experiment Station.

President Coolidge's approval of the flood control bill last week means a saving of approximately $23,000,000 to northern California land owners, according to a statement issued by Stephens W. Downey, attorney for the state reclamation board. Levies and other works of the Sacramento valley flood control projects involve a total cost of $51,000,000, toward which, up to this time, Downey said the federal and state governments have been contributing approximately 10 per cent each, the other 90 per cent remaining a charge against the land owners. The California provisions of the new federal flood control bill were sponsored by Congressman Charles F. Curry of Sacramento along the lines of the California debris commission report of 1925, and pledge the federal government, Downey said, to one-third participation in the $51,000,000 cost.

One of California's greatest killers, the grade crossing, will be attacked shortly, when active campaigning begins for passage of the grade crossing bond act, authorizing $10,000,000 bonds, to be matched by an equal amount from the railroads. Senator Roy Fellom of San Francisco is author of the act. "There were 194 persons killed and 763 injured in 1,740 grade crossing accidents during 1927," said Fellom. "These figures from the state railroad commission survey show an increase of nearly 40 per cent over 1925."

Many California automobile drivers, frequently unknown to themselves, are blind in one eye or have defective vision, tests of applicants for operators' license have revealed to inspectors for the state motor vehicle department. W. B. Jenkins, assistant division chief, announced that the discovery probably will result in the establishment of a system for the rigid testing of sight of all applicants at points where drivers are examined. A new provision of the motor vehicle law requires that all drivers have vision sufficiently good to drive with safety.

POULTRY DEVELOPMENT OF YOUNG TURKEYS

Many people report good success in raising young poults until they are one or two months old and then report losses. In a recent majority of cases this is due to the birds becoming affected with blackhead. This disease does not always show a blackened color of the head and for this reason many confuse it with something else. Blackhead is really a disease of the liver and intestine and in some of the extreme cases the head shows a discoloration. The more common symptoms are weakness in activity, a diminished appetite and diarrhea.

Blackhead is closely associated with small round worms. The small parasitic protozoan which causes blackhead seems to enter the system of the fowls through the small irritations made by these worms. Therefore, the prevention of worms is as important as the prevention of the disease proper.

Fortunately the prevention of worms is accomplished by the steps necessary to prevent the disease. Keeping the poults on fresh ground away from old birds, especially chickens, is necessary. Chickens are often affected with the disease but it does not injure them in the same manner as turkeys. Moving the poults to fresh ground at frequent intervals not only insures greater freedom from the disease, but it also helps to furnish green material and good range.

It has been demonstrated that it is not necessary to allow young poults the run of the farm. In fact many people are reporting better success when keeping them on ground that is not frequented by chickens.

A good ration for growing chickens is also a good ration for young poults.

Tuberculosis Is Subject of New Government Film

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)
"T. B. or Not T. B.," a question that is causing many Midwestern poultrymen to soliloquize on the future of their flocks, is the title of a recently released United States Department of Agriculture educational film. The picture is a two-reel dealing with tuberculosis of poultry.

The film, which is presented in story form, is designed to instruct poultrymen on ways and means of controlling this plague and keeping it from their flocks. Scenes depict the various common conditions which are conducive to the introduction of the disease to the poultry yard, the breeding of germs and the spread of the infection. Avian tuberculosis is not only fatal to fowls but spreads to swine as well, frequently resulting in heavy financial losses to the owners of the sick birds. Methods of wiping out the dreaded avian T. B. bacilli and preventing further losses from the disease are stressed in the new film.

Copies of United States Department of Agriculture films are available for loan without charge other than the cost of transportation, which must be assumed by the borrowers. Prospective users of the film should apply for bookings to the Office of Motion Pictures, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Apoplexy and Internal Rupture Cause Death

When hens that have been apparently healthy are found dead under the roost in the morning or on the nests, the loss is probably due to apoplexy or some internal rupture. This is often due to the strain of laying. Too heavy feeding of corn which makes the birds overfat is responsible for some of the sudden losses. Leghorns do not become overfat as easily as the heavy breeds but they lay a large egg which may cause a severe strain and occasional losses. A few birds may die from apoplexy and internal rupture in spite of the best of management and such losses help to make up the normal death rate in most poultry flocks. A postmortem examination of the internal organs may help in locating any disease if that condition is present.

Get Chicks Outside

Weather permitting, baby chicks should be allowed to run out into the open air when they are a week old. Running outside will give them an opportunity to get away from the heat of the brooder and absorb the life-giving elements of the sun at the same time. Wooden frames two feet by ten feet, covered with one-inch poultry netting, can be used to make a small yard near the brooder house. The first few weeks the baby chicks should be confined to this small yard.

Buy Baby Chicks

Many poultry raisers would find it more profitable to buy their baby chicks rather than try to hatch them. Each year the hatcheries are producing better-quality chicks. This year it would be safe to state that average hatchery chicks will be better than many farm-hatched chicks. Such a condition may be attributed to the hatcheries having called their breeding flocks closer than ever while the average farmer has not practiced culling.

Alfalfa for Fowls

Alfalfa meal is not a good protein supplement for chickens, even in very small quantities. Alfalfa leaf meal, however, can be fed without any difficulty as a danger of digestive troubles. The reason for this distinction is based on the fiber content of the two grades of meal. Alfalfa leaf meal is ground from leaves alone and contains only 12 to 15 per cent fiber. On the other hand, alfalfa meal, ground from the whole plant, contains 30 to 35 per cent fiber.

Cute in a Baby-Awful at Three-and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

Their grandmother and mother still are puzzled to understand the episode.

MEMORIAL DAY

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS"—the slogan has been used to some purpose by the florists. And with flowers, the people of a grateful nation will say on Wednesday that which they can say in no other way to the thousands whose last battle on earth is ended and for whom the final bugle has sounded. It is perhaps significant that God, who made death the common lot of all, also arrayed the earth in the panoply of floral beauty with which on occasion we may beautify the last resting places of those whose lives were lived for the nation which now honors them.

These men have lived, have fought a good fight and passed to other realms. What they have done lives today in the hearts of a grateful people. We may decorate their graves, we may extol them in words, but beyond this, we can do nothing.

We have another service, however, and one that we must not shirk. All those who fought are not among the legion whose lives are in the past. For many the battles which were fought in Chateau Thierry, Argonne and in the Flemish marshes brought no respite with the signing of a treaty. Shell-shocked and maimed; battered in mind and body, thousands today who left this country hale and hearty in '17 and '18, are today wrecks and hopeless in the hospitals of the nation. And many a family whose father rendered the supreme sacrifice on the soil of France or Belgium, has still a war, a war of its own against poverty, disease and hunger.

To these people the nation owes a debt of gratitude that no heaped flowers upon the graves of the dead will ever repay. But each can help. The ladies of the American Legion Auxiliary are helping and each who buys, and each who sells the red poppies made by these disabled veterans is helping. These flowers are made by the soldiers in the hospitals and the money received by their sale annually is used for these soldiers and the families of those who are disabled or were killed. We know of no finer service.

Good Citizenship and Cleanliness

GOOD CITIZENSHIP and good breeding as well demand that the first consideration of the individual should be the comfort and convenience of others. To do that which will inconvenience others may be a small matter, it may be merely throwing an old paper onto the street, or heaving a sack full of tin cans off on the side of the road, but in the aggregate these acts by several people are a real and very acute nuisance.

Now that the picnic season is in full swing it is an everyday experience to see every highway and byway strewn with the Sunday editions of bulky city papers, paper plates, pickle bottles and every manner of trash that the thoughtless and the careless can leave behind them.

This is just a lack of breeding. No one would intentionally clutter up a roadside. But hundreds do it every Sunday just for lack of thought. It would be just as easy to stow this trash away in the car and burn it after getting home. Hang the old blown-out tire on behind and give it to a garbage man instead of hanging it over the nearest fence post or tossing it into the creek. We saw one place on the beautiful La Honda creek recently where five old tires are cluttering up that charming stream within a few feet of the road.

This care for others should be one of the principals taught in our schools. But these institutions sometimes fail at this point. We saw a high school student this week, a boy who is a leader in many school activities, toss a big paper bag on the sidewalk within a yard or two of the garbage cans which the city supplies for just such use.

We have been so far speaking of the thoughtless and careless citizen, and they form a big majority of the offenders. But there is the occasional person with a sneaky, unclean, slovenly streak where his backbone should be. This is the person who rather than pay a few cents occasionally to have his rubbish removed, or too lazy to haul it to the dumping grounds, will fill sacks with all kinds of old refuse, and under cover of darkness, sneak like a thief to some picturesque spot beside the road and dump his filthy burden to pollute the air, clutter the landscape and to be an annoyance to all those who love the beauty and cleanliness of the country.

This latter individual, though he live in a mansion, has reached a stage of development no whit better than the rat who lives among filth and vermin, and banishment to such an environment would we think serve him "jolly well right."

BOND ISSUE MAY SPEED ROAD WORK

Some Opposition Shown To Reversion to Older Financing Methods

IMPORTANT HIGHWAY

Action of State May Determine Policy

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, May 24.—The nine new pathfinder cars which inevitably leads the Big Parade of 2,000,000 automobiles over California's roads, isn't fast enough for some of its passengers.

Although it consumes $25,000,000 worth of "gas" derived from the three-cent motor fuel tax annually, the state's road making machine still lacks speed to satisfy some sections which feel it would be wiser to step on the throttle and get at desired destinations in less time.

Bond issues, of which the state had a surplus during the early years of California Highway Commission administration, are coming back in style, at least so far as the west side of the San Joaquin Valley is concerned, and possibly elsewhere. Delays incident to the working out of the state highway program, may carry their battle direct to the people in an effort to get immediate results.

Failure to receive administration sanction of a proposed fast highway from Tracy, San Joaquin county, to Elmore, Ventura county, designed to provide a speed way connecting San Francisco and Los Angeles, a delegation of West Side citizens told Governor Young and Director of Public Works B. B. Meek, that a $40,000,000 bond issue to finance the program will be submitted to the people at the November election. Petitions for this initiative measure, now being prepared for circulation.

Meek, who was called into the conference by the governor, told the San Joaquin Valley citizens, headed by W. R. McKay, former district attorney of Kings county, that the division of highways now is investigating the most economical width for highway construction and to what width they should be widened, to care for increasing traffic before new roads are constructed. He said that 40 feet appeared to be the logical width before parallel roadways are built, and suggested that the West Side project should wait until decision is made to widen the present Golden State highway, the present valley route from Sacramento to Los Angeles.

Governor Young does not believe bond issues will be popular with the taxpayers who must pay for highways, and so informed the delegation. Not only, he said, did he doubt if citizens would welcome a return to the old method of financing construction, but if one such effort were successful, that the experiment undoubtedly would be tried by other sections of the state. At the same time he expressed a sympathetic desire to aid the west side of the San Joaquin valley in any way consistent with the administration's policy.

The present program of the state calls for expenditure of $120,000,000 over a 10-year period, but as students of traffic point out, by the time this work has been completed, the registration of California-owned cars may have grown to twice its present total, while the growing invasion of the state by eastern tourists and the necessities of commercial transportation may demand millions of dollars worth of roads not now contemplated.

According to McKay and others sponsoring the movement for the new West Side speedway, this condition exists, so far as the western side of the San Joaquin is concerned, that vast district lacking facilities that a trunk highway can give.

McKay told the governor that such a road as his supporters will ask via the bond issue route, will give the federal government, its first quick and safe means of transporting troops through the central part of the state, and that Los Angeles and San Francisco traffic already has reached a point where such a highway is rapidly becoming a vital necessity. Should Meek, however, announce a policy of widening the Golden State highway, the speedway proponents may face a vigorous battle at the November hustings.

Such an announcement would

State Employment Agencies Aid Labor Conditions in State

Native Sons' Team Defeats Firemen

How absurd, you say. But not so at all. Her Electric Range with its automatic time and temperature controls is doing the cooking automatically, while she is away from the kitchen.

The dinner placed in the cold oven at one o'clock starts to cook at four. The temperature control keeps the oven heat just right. The current will turn off at six. All this is done electrically, while she is playing cards, motoring or shopping.

Would you like to have the meals cooked while you're away? Over thirty thousand California women let the Electric Range do this for them. Our representative will gladly tell you about the modern electrical way of cooking.

New rates make electric cooking very economical

South Redwood Club In Interesting Meeting

On Friday evening the South Redwood Improvement Club, with Chas. Hildebrandt, president, presiding held its regular meeting.

During the evening speeches were made by Marion Hughes, president of the Redwood Promotion Association, and also by Mr. McNee, secretary of the latter association. They spoke about the necessity of people who were interested in the welfare of the city to attend the meetings and stand together as a body to help make Redwood City and San Mateo county and bigger and better place in which to live.

Y. M. I. Picnic Will Be Held Next Sunday

Redwood Council No. 66, Young Men's Institute, is sponsoring a picnic to be held next Sunday, May 27th at Schenkel's picnic ground on the Portola road.

Dancing, races and a baseball game between the Y. M. I. baseball team and the local Native Sons' aggregation will feature the day's activities.

The committee in charge, headed by Walt Maloney, assures all those present a good time.

Signs posted along the Woodside road will indicate the route to the picnic grounds.

Tickets for the picnic may be had at Ryan's Drug Store, Donnelly's real estate office and the Postoffice Market or at the entrance to the picnic grounds. Admission will be 25c per person.

Transportation will be furnished free by the Institute from the Men's Council clubrooms, corner Brewster and Warren streets, to the picnic grounds Sunday morning.

Carl M. Fisher of 189 Arch street left Tuesday for San Luis Obispo to supervise the installation of telephone equipment in that city. He recently returned from Eureka, where he supervised the additional apparatus in that city.

Mrs. Robb Given Farewell Party

A reception in honor of Mrs. Anna Bennett Robb, who left on Tuesday for a visit with her son, Bennett, in Chicago and with her mother in Pittsburgh, was given by members of the American Legion Auxiliary at the home of Mrs. Ruby Blomquist on Beech street Sunday evening.

Mrs. Robb was presented with a gift of appreciation of her work in the Auxiliary. Those present were Mesdames Anna Robb, Marjorie Burnett, D. G. Schiel, Mae Irving, Robert H. H. Thomas, Veronell, Mary E. Winter, Frank Goldman, Annie Bullivant, Ruby Blomquist and Miss Annie Bullivant.

Eagles Elect Officers For Ensuing Year

An election was held last Friday evening by the local order of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The officers elected at this time were: past president, Jack Hildebrandt; president, A. J. Stebbins; vice-president, Art Jensen; chaplain, Harry Preston; secretary, Carl Mable; treasurer, E. H. Werder; inside guard, Ralph Bristol; outside guard, Vernon Kreiss; trustees, M. A. Sharkey.

Bride-to-be Given Surprise Shower

The home of Miss Loraine Dickey on Bradford street was the scene of a pretty party Monday evening when Miss Dickey acted as hostess to a number of friends in honor of Miss Margaret Kirste, who is to be the bride of Edward Fogarty of Palo Alto next month.

The guest of honor received many beautiful presents from her friends who included: Mesdames Ray Stewart, George Roberts, Eugene Cerqui, Tom Stafford, Joe G. Dickey, Gertrude Morgan, and the Misses Lillian Delucchi, Margaret Grummon, Catherine Badie, Gertrude Warren, Florence Larroy, Constance Drathman, Ruth Kirste, Willis Kirste, Margaret Rice and Loraine Dickey.

High School NOTES

In preparation for the last dance of the school year, plans and work by the committee have been going ahead rapidly. The annual dance will cap the climax of the past term, occurring Saturday night, May 26.

Something new in the line of entertainment will occur on May 29, when the Review of Reviews takes place. Athletic contests and exhibitions, both in the gym and the swimming pool will be the outstanding features of the event.

The election of various class officers has been finally completed, and because of certain changes in the procedure of election, necessitated by the adoption of a standard skeleton constitution by all classes, the election of the class officers has become as complicated as the election of the student body officers.

The position of school yell leaders being enlarged upon this year and the aspiring leaders have received special instruction from past yell leaders in the art, the choice for next year's leader will be determined by popular vote of the students.

Talk on Banking Enjoyed by Club

An interesting talk on modern banking was given before the members of the Redwood City Exchange Club, Tuesday evening by Carl Wagner, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Italy. Wagner is an authority on banking practice and made his talk instructive as well as interesting.

Foreign exchange, stated Wagner, plays an important part in banking, and foreign trade is often stimulated by bankers who study the situation closely.

Clarke Congdon, president of the Palo Alto Exchange Club and Henry Collins, secretary were visitors.

Assistant District Attorney Edmund Scott was chairman of the meeting.

Organizations Urge Cemetery Improvement

Representatives of the Redwood City Community Council and of the Redwood City Improvement Association appeared before the board of trustees Monday evening in the interest of a clean-up campaign for Union cemetery. William J. Dussel acted as spokesman for the former organization and Merton Hughes spoke for the latter. Both men asked that the cemetery be improved and be kept in shape by the city.

Mayor Dussel asked if funds could be raised by the city for the purpose and City Attorney Mansfield stated that it was possible for a city to levy a special tax for the upkeep of a cemetery.

Permission was granted to both the Community Council and the Improvement Association to make the improvements which they contemplating in the local burying ground.

Teachers' Tenure Law Results in Controversy

(By Capitol News Bureau)
SACRAMENTO, May 24.—School boards and teachers are "battling" vigorously in a half-dozen California communities today with the board's right to hire and fire under the new state teachers' tenure act as the bone of contention.

Threats of launching an initiative measure to be placed on the November ballot, repealing the act have been made by Colusa county school trustees, while in Hridley there is a schism between the board and teachers who, standing on legal rights, have refused to resign, thereby preventing operation of the tenure act.

Under terms of the law a teacher re-employed at the end of three years' service becomes a permanent employee who can only be removed following a hearing of charges of unprofessional or immoral conduct and public trial.

Avocado Seen As Important State Crop

(By Capitol News Bureau)
SACRAMENTO, May 24.—Avocados, henceforth, must be considered as an important California fruit crop, as the result of forecasts in production from 568,000 pounds in 1924 to more than 1,000,000 pounds last year, a gain of 275 percent in three years, department of agriculture officials point out. The state now has more than 4500 acres devoted to the culture of this fruit, although but 1500 acres now are in heavy bearing. While the avocado grows in all parts of the state, the principal producing districts are along the coast in Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles and Orange counties.

Three-Cent Gas Tax Yields $7,441,416

(By Capitol News Bureau)
SACRAMENTO, May 23.—State collections of the three-cent gasoline tax for the first quarter of 1928 totaled California $7,441,416.05, State Controller Ray L. Riley announced. This sum does not include one delinquency of $16,541.64 which will be collected with penalties.

Woodside

Mrs. Richard Hellman returned on Saturday from an extended trip abroad and found at her home a large group of her friends who had gathered to welcome her return to Woodside. The affair was planned by Mrs. Russell Slade.

Mrs. Prentiss Cobb Hale was hostess on Wednesday at a barbecue picnic at her Woodside home. Mr. and Mrs. Hale will leave next week for the east to attend the graduation exercises of their son, Prentiss Cobb Hale Jr., who is at Lawrenceville. Mrs. Hale's son, Carlton Bryan, with his wife and small son, will spend the month of June at the Hale place here.

W. W. Mein is building a new cottage on the Albion avenue. The pupils of the Portola Evening School will give as the last social affair of the school year, an invitational dancing party at the school house in Portola on the evening of June 2nd.

John Duzanica will leave on Friday for the Morshhead summer home at Lake Tahoe. Mr. and Mrs. Morshhead will follow the first of the week. Mr. Morshhead plans to build an additional house on his Tahoe property this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Harris have sent out invitations for a large supper party to be given at their home here on Saturday evening, June 2nd.

A new tennis court is being constructed at the Robert Schurman place.

Mr. Boggs, Miss Wolters and Miss Larson of the High School visited the Woodside school on Wednesday for the purpose of registering those pupils who will enter high school at the beginning of the next school year.

Miss Mary Griffin of Stanford University was the guest this week of her sister, Mrs. George Owens. Mrs. S. P. Eastman entertained a number of her San Francisco friends at the new Eastman home on West Union creek.

James Mackenzie and family will move to San Francisco on June 11th. This argues no dissatisfaction with Woodside, but is because of business reasons solely.

Y. M. I. Baseball Team Continues Victorious

By JOHN RYAN

Continuing their victorious march the baseball team of the Redwood Council Young Men's Institute defeated the Sunshine Stores aggregation from San Francisco last Sunday by a 5 to 4 count.

Alvin (Tack) Hallett on the mound for the locals, held the visitors scoreless until the fourth frame, when George Beck, Sunshine short stop and former coast leaguer, connected for a circuit clout. Beck had a perfect day at the plate getting three hits in three times at bat.

The Redwood team got off to a good start when Stevens drew life on an error and Britschgi drove him in with a homer.

Three runs in the eighth inning gave the visitors a two-run lead. The locals came back in their half of the frame to tie up matters.

Stevens singled and stole second from whence he came home on another single by Britschgi. "Hawley" Herm's sacrifice fly to right field sent Britschgi across the platter.

Hallett won his own game in the last half of the ninth when he singled with two down, reached third in the milling and came home on Steven's second hit of the afternoon.

The Institute Pastimers hook-up with the local Native Sons' aggregation on next Sunday at Schenck's picnic ground, where the Y. M. I. picnic is to be held.

Manager Al Bullivant promises all those present next Sunday a hotly contested game.

Many Events Planned At School Review

Swimming, music, basketball, volley ball and other sports will provide entertainment for those who attend the Review of Reviews Tuesday, May 29, at Sequoia's gym. The admission of 25c which is to be charged will go toward the purchasing of block "S" sweaters for the girls and boys who have earned them in the past year. A swimming carnival, "King Neptune's Review," will be given by the girls in the outdoor swimming tank.

In the gym during this entertainment the boys will put on a program, which has as its first number a volley ball game between the faculty and the sophomore interclass champions. A baseball game called "Sack Em," will be played between the 1928 and the 1929 commissioners. Selections by the Sequoia band will follow.

Parts from the plays which have been given at Sequoia this year will be enacted under the title of "dramatic moments." A boys' orchestra will play several pieces after which there will be numbers by the girls' and boys' "duos." Two boys playing string instruments, a "Dirt Race," "Lindy Hop," and "How" will end the program.

The Colfax Bookplate

By Agnes Miller

SYNOPSIS

On a certain morning Monday morning Miss Constance Pular, cataloguer and seller of rare books at Darrow's New and Second-Hand Bookshop, New York, notices that the first customer is a dignified, white-bearded old gentleman, who saunters into the store, glances at "Medical Works," Peter Burton, one of the employees, amazes Constance by telling her he paid $510 at auction for an old law book containing a Colfax bookplate. Suddenly a girl's shriek of "Murder!" rings out in the store. The elderly customer is on the floor unconscious, with his right wrist slashed. Just before the shrieking girl falls is a faint, she calls out to Peter: "Keep it! Keep it for me!" Peter's sister, Nancy, began that morning working at Darrow's. Nancy tells Constance of her elopement with Brandon Tower, a shorthand teacher, an elopement which was cut short when Tower attempted to make off with Nancy's suitcase. Constance explains Darrow's card-index system to Captain Ashland of England, a nephew of Mr. Darrow's. They examine the book Peter paid $510 for and find the bookplate to be a forgery. Constance is appointed by Mr. Roberts to assist Detective Almy in his investigation of the murder of the elderly gentleman.

She beamed flatteringly on Mr. Almy, and held out tribute to him, looking somewhat askance at me. "You wanted me to bring you this, you said," she breathed. He flipped over the carbon pages of her salesbook in businesslike style. "No," I said. "I want to see five books to Professor Harrington at ten-fifty-one yesterday morning, did you?" he asked. "What did he do when he bought them?" "He left the shop," "Very good. Now, Miss Abbott, will you describe to me what you saw and heard when the alarm regarding Mr. Grosvenor was given?" "I was putting some books into the first alcove on the right of the main aisle," began Daisy, willingly and thrillingly, "when suddenly I heard a scream: 'Murder! Help! Help! He's dead!' Then Miss Grosvenor—of course I didn't know then who she was—dashed out of the law-book section just as I reached the aisle, and shrieked at Mr. Burton, 'Keep it for me!' I simply couldn't imagine what the girl meant. . . ."

"Then she clutched at a table and fainted." "Miss Abbott, did you see Miss Grosvenor hand to Mr. Burton, or in any way convey to him, an object of any sort?" "No," said Daisy, promptly and with obvious relief. "Did you see him take anything from her, or off the table?" Daisy dropped again. "No, a not a word."

Mr. Roberts appeared to be court-ing sympathy, but Mr. Almy leaned forward confidentially, it not tenderly. "Now, listen: you want to help me, don't you?"

"Oh, yes!" breathed little Gold-locks. "Then just tell me anything that in your judgment might help solve this baffling mystery. You might know something nobody else did!"

"Oh, yes," breathed Daisy, fluttering her eyelids over this violation of the Scriptural injunction against strong meat for babes. "Well, if this is of any use, this is what I had in mind: You see, first both Mr. Burton and Miss Grosvenor stopped short in the middle of the aisle just as if they recognized each other. It was awfully quick, but it did happen: I saw it. But neither of them spoke a word. Then, instantly after Miss Grosvenor had stopped short, she stumbled. Then, instantly, both of them grabbed toward the table at the same time, just after she'd shrieked 'Keep it!' That's absolutely all I saw then. Mr. Almy, and it's absolutely all true. But of course, I don't know whether any of that is useful to you—"

"You may safely leave that decision to Mr. Almy, Miss Abbott," he served Mr. Roberts and opened the door. Daisy bestowed a freezing stare on him—being fired, she was now a free agent—a sweet smile on Mr. Almy, and nothing at all on me and departed.

"Get Dibble now," said Mr. Almy without further comment, and soon the keen George Henry appeared on the alert. As he had been the best to reach the law alcove after the alarm, Mr. Almy referred to the fact that he had seen no signs of a struggle, according to his testimony given the policeman.

"No, sir, and I looked sharp for a weapon, too," said Mr. Dibble; "but not any. There was only the old man, lying slumped against the lowest shelf, on the rear side of the alcove, facing toward the back of the shop."

Mr. Dibble was dismissed with thanks, and asked to send Miss Jones up from the shop. As soon as the door was shut, Mr. Almy asked me: "Where were you during all that time?"

"In Mr. Case's office, trying to revive Miss Grosvenor," I replied, wondering if I were in for more searching questions.

But Mr. Almy merely gazed at the desk blotter until Emily appeared. "I understand you sold a copy of Schuler on Willis yesterday, Miss James," began Mr. Almy.

"Yes, to a young man. He had a briefcase. He seemed to be a law student. I inquired if he wished something in law books. He mentioned Schuler. We had the one copy. I found it at once. He gave me the exact change, one dollar and a half, and took the book without wrapping. He left the shop directly. It was just before ten o'clock, as you can see from this duplicate sales record which I have brought you."

"Very good. Now, Miss James, as you were the one person here who had any dealings with Mr. Grosvenor, will you please describe just what took place between you and him?"

"It was almost nothing," said Miss James. "He stepped from the law-book shelves as I was coming up the aisle with some books for the front shelves, and asked me to turn on the light."

"As you passed up the aisle, did you see the young lady who has been identified as Miss Grosvenor?"

"No," I first saw her when she rushed up the aisle, screaming. "This was all Miss James knew, and it was now lunch time, and I was ordered to come straight back to Mr. Roberts' office after luncheon. And there was Peter ahead of me, alone with Mr. Almy, and I could see a trifle flustered. Mr. Almy began briskly: 'Miss Fuller, Mr. Burton says he was sitting at your desk between two-thirty and eleven-fifty yesterday morning, when your chat was interrupted by this applicant from the employment agency, whom you yourself mentioned to me. Can you describe his appearance, Mr. Burton?'"

"He was about six feet tall, a big broad-shouldered chap; had fair hair and complexion, and wore a gray sweater and an old soft hat—gray, too. I think."

"I nodded in corroboration. Mr. Almy then asked: 'Did either or both of you see him enter the shipping office?'"

"No, you can't see the door from Miss Fuller's desk," answered Peter; "but he did go in."

"How do you know?" "I heard the time-clock ring almost immediately."

"About what time was that?" "Well, I came down to the shop about ten-thirty," reflected Peter; "he came in a few minutes later. I guess it was about twenty minutes of eleven."

Mr. Almy plunged his hand into the desk drawer, and next minute spread out a pile of punched time-clock cards. "Here are yesterday's records," he said. "Look them over." We did. "There's no time, you see, punched on any card between eight-fifty-nine and noon! And furthermore, Mr. Riggs denies positively that any one applied to work for him yesterday!"

"What does the employment agency say?" I demanded. "That they got a request from Darrow's at nine o'clock, and sent a man up as soon as possible. But he never reported back to them. And I might mention that none of the three clerks in the shop saw him, either."

"Nevertheless," said I, "that man came in just as Mr. Burton described; the time clock rang about ten-forty; and, furthermore, it rang again, ten minutes later."

"That's so, it did," ejaculated Peter. "I remember, I looked at my watch when we heard it."

"There's no record of either of these rings on these cards," said Mr. Almy, positively.

"Well, I can't tell you what didn't happen," said I, rather exasperated. "but I have told you what did."

Nobody said anything for a while. I almost believed that Mr. Almy had been convinced that the time clock had rung, and that Peter and I were deciding it hadn't, when a sudden question came:

"Mr. Burton, were you at all acquainted with Mr. Grosvenor?"

"Not even by sight, sir," answered Peter. "I had never even seen him in the shop, like some of the other employees."

"Or were you acquainted with his granddaughter?"

"Never met her in my life."

"Several people heard her say to you, 'keep it for me! Do you know what she meant?'"

"I couldn't possibly say," replied Peter, without a tremor. "For she was just on the point of fainting, and seemed to speak almost without consciousness of the act. I thought her mind was elsewhere to tell you the truth; I thought she had lost track of her surroundings, from the way she looked, so dazed and helpless. Then she toppled right over before I could reach her."

"I see," said Mr. Almy. We were all silent a moment, then Peter said: "It'd like to ask a question; that is, if there's no harm in it. Is it known yet how that attack on the old gentleman was made?"

"I have a theory," said Mr. Almy. "I think the attack took place from behind the rear of that law alcove. There was no outcry, no struggle; it's plausible, therefore, to suppose that the old man didn't see or hear his assailant. The position in which Dibble found Mr. Grosvenor lying—had died against the bookcase, facing the rear—is strange. If some one had got behind that alcove, and slashed the old man's right wrist across the bookshelf as he was reaching for a book and was therefore slightly off his exact balance, he would probably have fallen in just that position. You know there was a large gap on the shelf in front of him, caused by the removal of that big book Dibble found on the floor. That shelf is about four feet above the floor, an easy height for an attack on an outstretched arm."

"You think the attack was all planned out carefully?" I ejaculated in horror.

"Well, all I will say now is that Mr. Grosvenor had evidently been watched and followed. The stenographer, having finally achieved a wedding ring, herself, was scandalized at the stepdaughter's seeking farther for one; the brother took his sister's part; and the two young folks decided to leave home. They hadn't a place to lay their heads Monday night, until I happened to be trying to divert this unhappy damsel with luncheon at Ernesto's, and he chanced to mention that he had an apartment vacant. She is a somewhat impulsive young lady, and took the apartment forthwith. She had never heard of the Grosvenors; neither had I; Ernesto didn't know his tenant was dead; Peter didn't know I was taking his sister to luncheon; and I didn't know I'd take her to Ernesto's until after we'd left here. I trust, Mr. Almy, that I have now made clear the connection between Mr. Grosvenor's death and the Burton apartment at Fourteen Normandy terrace."

Mr. Almy treated himself to a smile; a little one, but a smile notwithstanding.

"You present your case ably," he said; "now, if you have nothing else to do, I wish you'd go home."

"Go home! When I have to make a catalogue—"

"Exactly. Make a mental catalogue, for ready reference, of all this rare information you've heard today."

Orders had to be carried out. And, being of a generous disposition, I added a mental questionnaire, for future reference, to the catalogue; it went as follows:

"How did the professor's book-list—Daisy's testimony had identified it as his—get into Framingham's 'Orations?'"

Had Brandon Tower any connection with that law student?

"If so, had he come twice to Darrow's for 'Chadwick's' 'Rings?'"

Why had the twice-rung time-clock left no record?

What had become of the man from the employment agency?

CHAPTER VI

Julia's Story

Having spent a profitless evening in the study of these queries, I resolved the next morning that nothing but a convulsion of nature should again distract me from the rare-book catalogue until it was finished. But the clatter of my typewriter keys had hardly begun when the convulsion of nature occurred, in the form of a persistent booming which gradually resolved itself into my name. I looked up to see Mr. Roberts peering over the barricade of books surrounding the scene of operations.

Mr. Almy would like to see you at once, in my office."

"You can do the catalogue later," said Mr. Almy, next moment. "Mr. Roberts didn't say so," I observed severely.

"He did to me."

"Indeed!" I remarked restrainedly. "Well, then, now what?"

"This: I'm going to ask you to go and see Miss Grosvenor."

(Choking off a violent impulse to refuse point-blank in a few well-chosen words, I demurred gracefully: "Oh . . . a stranger . . . to go and see her now? Her grandfather can't be buried yet."

"I thought of that," said Mr. Almy. "The funeral will be over at her home at ten o'clock this afternoon. The first is, her position in her grandfather's household was most unusual and difficult."

"ON FAME'S ETERNAL CAMPING GROUND"

Legion's Tribute to Fallen Comrades

A famous correspondent, Julius B. Wood, of the Chicago Daily News, said of the pilgrimage to Surinnes made by the American Legion when they visited France last year:

"High on a green hillside, behind serried lines of white marble crosses, the sweetly solemn notes of 'taps' echoed from an army bugle. The sun broke through the clouds, and France and America paid honor to the 1,507 American soldiers and sailor dead in Surinnes cemetery, three miles outside the western wall of Paris."

"A color-guard lowered four American flags and five Legion standards representing various departments, while wounded French veterans with flags of America and France on a single staff joined in a line in front of the speaker's stand."

"The first task of the American Legion upon arriving in France is to pay homage to the American and French dead," said Sheldon Whitehouse, Ambassador Herrick's representative, speaking from a little flag-draped stand.

"A ripple of applause greeted General Pershing, who ten years ago commanded these boys now sleeping in the beautiful park, where the Stars and Stripes float against a background of towering elms."

"We have come," he said, "to pay a loving tribute of remembrance to the Americans who lie in the cemeteries of France."

"Howard Savage, retiring national commander of the American Legion, talked not to the living, standing with uncovered heads and moist eyes, but to the spirits of the buddies whose sacred trust their living comrades still are carrying on."

"The men now sleeping in France fell before they saw the dawn of liberty for all the world," said Marshal Foch. "We will ever be faithful to their memories."

"Again the standard-bearers raised their colors. A chaplain intoned a benediction. Taps sounded from beyond the trees, and the officials walked slowly away—while here, and there, alone among the white crosses, remained the bowed forms of those stopping for a time at the resting place of their dear ones."

We next find Mr. Wood on still more familiar ground—Chateau-Thierry: "Charles Martell's medieval castle still towers above the city, but the machine-gun nests are gone from the grounds of the park, where strolling lovers gaze for miles over the peaceful valley. Automobiles glide over a smooth asphalt road between Meaux and La Ferté Sous Jouarre. When the Second division humped over on June 1, ten years ago, it wore mud-damned helmets with teeth-cracking holes. "Montreuil aux Lions seems small like any other village today. The room where General Bundy had his headquarters, and directed the Second division through the subsequent weeks is now used as a schoolroom, and is filled with battered benches. Water still drips from the old pump where the soldiers moistened their dust-parched throats, but on the other side of the marble, or town hall, stands a new monument recording the names of thirty sons of that tiny village who were lost."

Recalling Days of War. "From the windows of a modest village home flags wave, for the people have not forgotten the days when the marble hummock, with activity, when piles of ammunition were stored on its stony lawn, and strings of carts were frantically taken forward, surgeons hastily applying emergency dressings in its old wagon shed, while a few miles beyond there was the steady drum-fire of artillery."

"Back of Lalogue farm three regiments of an American artillery brigade were in position in waving wheat fields. Cows now tramp the muddy farmyard, and chickens are scattered along the lane down which a Milwaukee marine marched one morning with an entire German company as prisoners. In Torcy stands a church tower, and children are playing in the streets where silent forms and torn uniforms were lying thickly when the Americans finally fought their way through the woods."

"The Bois Belleau, the tangled underbrush of which hid hundreds of machine guns spitting death, is now a park maintained by an organization of American women. Down below, rows of wooden crosses register the names of those who made the woods hallowed ground. Two hundred identified Americans who fell at Belleau wood lie in this cemetery. The number of their opponents who sold their lives so dearly will never be known, as most of them never were found."

White against the gray. Patches on the barn: Red among the roof-tiles By the twisting Marne.

Not another taken Of the hearts there broken. Cold the standing wheat, Green the fallen corn, Thick the branches meet By the twisting Marne.

Do they ever tell here Of the men who fell here? Sudden, from on high, Birds of peace are caught Playing in the sky Where the war birds fought.

Past and present trying Where the Marne is twisting. Anne Hard in New York Herald Tribune.

gay celebrators now in France, were the poor devils that went through that hell for six weeks until it was over. They deserve their holiday."

"The coming of the American Legion to France," said Leland Stowe in a Paris dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune, "has gripped France as few things have gripped her in the last ten years. In the coming of Pershing and his men, the French people find an emotional appeal to their imaginations. And the soul of France is peculiarly emotional." As the Washington Star explained:

Earned French Gratitude. "The Frenchman remembers the Americans in the gloomy days of 1917. He remembers watching a dreary world of suspense turn to a summer of hope as thousands of lean, bronzed young men from across the sea marched to the north to take their places alongside the soldiers of France. He remembers the victory they helped to make. Is there wonder that France cheers them as they pass?"

Memories of Memorial Day Testimony to the Gratitude of a Great Reunited Nation

Memorial day is a peculiarly American holiday. Other nations, some of which have disappeared from history, have, or have had, days set apart to the honor of their dead, and these are religious festivals. But America was the first country whose people appointed one day to be sacred to the memory of her defenders in war; one day on which the flag should fly not over a land, but over the graves of the nation should be remembered not by its family or friends alone, but by all the people.

It was fitting that this day should have grown out of a war which first split the nation in twain, then reunited it in stronger bonds. In a Mississippi town, two years after that conflict, the women strewn flowers on the graves of all the soldiers, Union as well as Confederate. It was a sublime gesture; it meant that the bitterness of defeat had been washed away in blood, leaving only grief that such a calamitous war should have been necessary.

Many have died in America's service since that first Memorial day in Columbia, Miss., some on our Western plains, some in the heat of Cuba, some in the Philippine jungles, many on far seas, still more on distant European fields. It was Lincoln who foresaw, and voiced in immortal words what the day means for us: "It is for us the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work gay celebrators now in France, were the poor devils that went through that hell for six weeks until it was over. They deserve their holiday."

"The coming of the American Legion to France," said Leland Stowe in a Paris dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune, "has gripped France as few things have gripped her in the last ten years. In the coming of Pershing and his men, the French people find an emotional appeal to their imaginations. And the soul of France is peculiarly emotional." As the Washington Star explained:

Earned French Gratitude. "The Frenchman remembers the Americans in the gloomy days of 1917. He remembers watching a dreary world of suspense turn to a summer of hope as thousands of lean, bronzed young men from across the sea marched to the north to take their places alongside the soldiers of France. He remembers the victory they helped to make. Is there wonder that France cheers them as they pass?"

SUCH IS LIFE — A Sissy by Relation — By Charles Sughrue

Hero Made Happy

Shanghai.—Happiness has come to the life of America's oldest possessor of the Congressional Medal of Honor—Robert Kline, one-time resident of New York, but for the last half century a resident of China.

Two years ago Kline was stricken blind. He lived in darkness in the little home he maintained on Kiang-wan road.

But he had his memories and he was extravagantly proud of his trophies—the Congressional medal won when, as a member of the crew of the old U. S. S. Raleigh, he risked his own life by entering a gas-filled hold and rescued several comrades from what seemed certain death, and the Dewey medal won for gallantry at Manila bay.

Last July 4 he was guided by a friend to the Bund, where the American marines were parading. On his faded blue coat gleamed the medals.

Presently an admiral, commander in chief of the American Adriatic fleet, arrived with his aids and was about to mount the stand when he espied Kline. Up went the admiral's right arm in quick salute.

Onlookers told Kline and tears trickled from his sightless eyes. He would have given anything, he said, to have seen the tribute.

Recently Dr. V. B. Murray, eye specialist attached to the United States health department, became interested in Kline's affliction and decided to operate.

For three weeks Kline lay in a curtained room, hoping and praying. The bandages were removed and thanks to the prayers or to efficacious surgery or both, Kline found he could see. Indistinctly at first, but his eyes gradually are growing stronger.

That's why the old veteran is happy now. "When these big boys salute me again you just bet I'll see 'em," he said.

these unscrupulous acquaintances who give it for their own profit without being asked.

Fathers should train their daughters in the management and investment of money. Husbands should let their wives know something of business matters. They catch on very quickly. I discover, and will shortly, if they get a good start, be able to give you advice that it would be quite wise to listen to.

A friend of mine, seventy years old or so, died a few years ago and left his wife a comfortable fortune in well invested bonds. She was as ignorant as a child, however. He had never told her anything. When a bond was called she thought some one was trying to cheat her or that she was likely to lose her money. A reinvestment in securities above par was incomprehensible to her. She was saved only by the fact that the executor of her husband's estate was honest and patient and firm. It is because so many women have husbands or fathers who keep them ignorant of financial matters that so many women go into bankruptcy when they are forced to manage their own affairs.

OUT FOR GOLF TITLE

Apparently recovered from the illness that struck him after he had won the British Amateur championship in 1926, Jess Sweetser plans a comeback campaign this year that he hopes will lead him to another national amateur golf title. He has mapped out a program that will bring him into three tournaments this summer with the national amateur as his chief objective.

Asp Venom Is Found Curative of Rabies

Paris.—The asp, which provided Cleopatra with a solution of her love problems, is also it appears, death to rabies. The discovery was made by a well-known French woman physician, Dr. Marie Phisalix. In a paper read to the Academy of Sciences, she told of having established that the venom of the asp when mixed with virus of rabies makes the latter harmless and noninfectious.

Another of the older authorities, Capt. Louis Mignard, a dapper little pilot in a Norfolk suit and brown derby, but a mere septuagenarian beside Captain McElroy's eighty-five years, is also mildly skeptical of Twain's future on the river, had he stayed.

"I think he loved the river, but I don't know whether he really loved piloting. If he had, he would have Asbestos is a mineral. It is found in many parts of the world, though we get the greatest quantities from Quebec in Canada. gone back to it after the war. A real pilot doesn't want to do anything else, and he doesn't have much of anything else on his mind if he's a good one. Twain was a great joker, but that took up some of his time."

A generation and more ago Captain McElroy was one of the best-known pilots on the Mississippi, and owner of three great craft in the last quarter of the steamboat age: the Southern Belle, the Ouchita Belle, and the St. John No. 2. Also, he is one of the few pilots who ever took a boat out of New Orleans to Bismarck, N. D.

Another age has dawned on the river, less picturesque, with fewer amenities and more system. From the bridge of the Faith the old gentleman who "cubbed" with Twain will keep an understanding eye on its progress.

Any Woman Can Look Stylish

By MAE MARTIN

Most stylish, looking women you see are simply "good managers." They don't open their pocket-books wide for every change in fashion. They know simple ways to make last season's things conform to this season's styles.

Thousands of them have learned how easily they can transform a dress, or blouse, or coat, by the quick magic of home tinting or dyeing. With true, fadeless Diamond Dyes, anyone can do this successfully. The "know-how" is in the dye. Each package represents the perfection of 50 years of dye-making. They don't streak or spot like inferior dyes. New, fashionable tints appear like magic, right over the out-of-style or faded colors. Tinting with Diamond Dyes is as easy as bluing, and dyeing takes just a little longer. Only Diamond Dyes produce perfect results. Insist on them and save disappointment.

My new 64-page book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of ways you can make your home and clothes stylish and attractive, and do it with little money. It's FREE. Send for your copy, NOW. Write Mae Martin, Home Service Dept., Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

King's Favorites Are

Two twelve-passenger "harem cars," enclosed and screened, are among the fleet of motor cars ready in London for shipment to Mecca. The automobiles are for the accommodation of more than one hundred members and attendants of the Arabian court who are to travel through the country by this means in future.

The "harem cars" cost more than $250,000, are capable of a speed of 60 miles an hour and are finished in aluminum and white. The assemblage of automobiles includes also twenty-four-seaters for the royal guards and a spectacular seven-seater touring car for the sovereign himself.

The women of the harem will sit in their cars six to a side, on crossed legs, facing each other and with veils for their elbows. Ibn Saud, the mighty Arab chief, has ordered a car all in silver and with searchlights that will light up the road a mile ahead.

Death, Disease and Fate

Death and disease are not the handiwork of an inscrutable Providence or a cruel chance, says the Woman's Home Companion. They are instead enemies to be fought and conquered by devotion and intelligence and dogged persistence.

Women and Financial Matters

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I HAD a request not long ago from the secretary of some philanthropically inclined organization asking me to act on a committee for the education of women in financial matters. I felt as much complimented as did the indigent colored man who was asked to change a ten dollar bill, but I asked myself why women more than men should need special education in such matters, and further why I should be run in to broadcast such education.

I have heard it said that doctors, lawyers, teachers, and professional men generally are the first to snap at get-rich-quick schemes, and know the

Baby Seems to Be Unhurt by Tobacco

Four-year-old Freddie Rigg of Seattle, Wash., being examined by Dr. Ira C. Brown, head of the Seattle school health department. Although Freddie has used tobacco in some form ever since he was ten months old, Doctor Brown says of him: "He is decidedly above the average. He is a year and a half physically above the average four-year-old. His heart, pulse and lungs are normal. He is one year mentally above the average four-year-old. I feel that the medical men can learn a worthwhile lesson from this child. Tobacco increases the flow of saliva. In this case the child's food. The second that thing, thus aiding in the digestion of the child's food. The creosote in place tobacco has many chemicals in it, and the fermentation of food. I this case was especially beneficial and relieved the fermentation of food. I have heard of adults benefiting from tobacco, but this is the first time I've heard of a baby thriving on it."

Knew Twain as Cub

New Orleans.—There seems to be a little doubt in the minds of older experts on the river whether Sam Clemens would ever have become the Mississippi's greatest pilot if he had stayed in the business instead of wandering off into literature.

Clemens is still "Horace Bixby's cub" in river lore, as he was in the early chapters of his own "Life on the Mississippi," and for the benefit of such as may not identify "Bixby's cub" the pilots go on to say that he left the river after he got his papers and later in life became a writer and changed his name to Mark Twain. Bixby is still pronounced Bixby, as it was by Brown, the luckless pilot of the Pennsylvania, whose powers of memory were so acute and various

"I was with Clemens on the river," said Capt. J. P. McElroy, one of the few surviving cubs who populate Twain's saga of the steamboats. "Sam was a fine lad, but I guess his head was full of jokes. There were other things than business going on in it—things, I expect, to put in his books. In fact, he was writing burlesque for the Picayune when we were boys."

"Bixby told me a yarn about him that Sam wrote up later on. You know, in New Orleans the water is so swift in the channel that when you move upstream you keep as near as possible to the docks on the city side to keep out of the current. When you go downstream you stay on the Al-giers side to get the advantage of the river's movement."

"Sam had the wheel as the Paul Jones started upriver, and Bixby told

War Vet 'Comes Back'

San Francisco.—Unable to account for many blank years and long thought dead by relatives, Nathaniel William Emery, thirty-eight, Bloomington, Ind., shell-shock victim of the World war and former lieutenant in the United States Marine corps, has been found ill and destitute, here.

Robert C. Stillwell, secretary of the United Veterans' service commission, No. 312 Jessie street, has received information that clears up the mystery and steps have been taken to place Emery in a government hospital for treatment.

Emery wandered into the commission's office looking for a job. He said he wanted work of any kind as he was homeless, penniless and had been sleeping in Golden Gate park. He knew he had been in the Marine corps; that he enlisted in 1915 and was discharged in 1919; he recalled something about service on the battle-ship Texas, and with the One Hundred and Thirtieth company, Eleventh U. S. M. C. Beyond that he knew nothing about himself.

Emery was given temporary relief and Stillwell wrote to James E. Watson, United States senator from Indiana. The reply unraveled the tangled skein.

Emery, it was divulged, had escaped from a Madison (Ind.) hospital in 1923, to which he had been sent from Bloomington in 1921. Since his escape nothing had been heard from him. His wife, struggling to support their nine-year-old son and herself, had given him up for dead, divorced him and remarried.

Emery had had a hazy recollection of having a brother in the army and apparently had wandered over the country looking for him. The brother is Maj. A. R. Emery, formerly stationed at the Presidio, now at Fort Hunt, Alexandria, Va. He has been apprised by military authorities of Emery's condition.

When Emery fled the Madison hospital the government stopped paying him compensation. In five years this has accumulated to several thousand dollars, and an effort is being made to have this restored.

At the request of Emery's Bloomington friends, Stillwell now seeks to have him removed either to the Madison (Ind.) hospital or to Palo Alto from Napa, where he is receiving temporary treatment.

Vermont a Republic

for Fourteen Years

Vermont is to be congratulated upon the sesquicentennial of her declaration of independence. It is almost forgotten that the Green Mountain state had its origin as an independent republic one hundred and fifty years ago the difficulties of her citizens over conflicting land grants issued by New Hampshire and New York led to the formation of a state which refused alliance either to Great Britain or to the newly formed union of revolting colonies. Fortunately, these independent farmers asserted in their declaration a willingness to ally themselves with "our brethren in the United States of America to do our full proportion in maintaining and supporting the just war."

Rare Coin Collection

Now comes another collector of one of the rarest pieces, Arthur C. Kelly of Danvers, who states that he has a collection that runs unbroken for 104 years—1824 to 1928. In the period that runs from 1800 to 1823, twenty-four years, inclusive, he has cents for thirteen of the years, and from 1800 to 1810 his collection is only minus the cents for 1804, 1806 and 1809.—Boston Globe.

Famous Conspiracy

In British history the Cato street conspiracy was a conspiracy under the lead of Arthur Thistlewood, which tried to assassinate Castlereagh and other ministers. The plot was discovered February 23, 1820, at the residence, Cato street, near Edgware road, London. It is also called the Thistlewood conspiracy.

MENLO PARK

Military School to Grant Honors
The Pacific Coast Military Academy will hold its annual commencement exercises upon the academy grounds at Menlo Park, Friday, May 25.

Cadet Second Lieut. Thornton Howell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Howell of Atherton, will graduate honor man. Cadet Sergeant Maj. James Welsh of San Francisco, will graduate with second honors. The military honors of the class will be awarded to Cadet Capt. Ronald Muller of San Francisco.

The academy, according to Maj. R. W. Park, the superintendent, will hold a summer session starting June 11.

Over $500 Raised

Over $500 was raised at the benefit bridge tea given by the Trinity Women's Guild of the Menlo Park Trinity Episcopal church Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Leroy Nickel on Middlefield road. About 50 tables were taken for bridge, and cooked foods, candy and fancy work were sold.

Off For Europe

Leon Douglas and family will depart in a few days for a trip through Europe and will be absent from Menlo Park all summer. The palatial home here will be closed during that time.

Plan Dances for June 9th.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society is planning a dance to take place in the new Masonic hall on June 9th. It promises to be a big event.

Shortridge Expected Home Soon

Senator Shortridge is expected home early in June. Congress will adjourn next week. The senator is to take the stump for his friend, Herbert Hoover, should he secure the Republican nomination for the presidency. Shortridge may tour the United States in his talks for the commerce secretary.

A movement is on foot to extend Willow road through the Hopkins property to connect with the state highway and later to be extended to the Skyline boulevard, thus making a circuit from San Francisco to Oakland. This road would be one of the most scenic and beautiful of any in the country. Its construction is well within the realm of possibility.

To Be Absent A Month

Frank Campbell, the popular proprietor of the local auto camp, left last week for his former home in New York and will be absent for a month.

Charles Riddell III, an employee of the Bear Gulch Water Company, is suffering from a severe illness and will be confined to the Franklin hospital in San Francisco for a month. He is one of the progressive young men of this city.

Home To Open June 5th.

The children's home in Stanford Park, controlled and operated by the Little Children's Aid Society of San Francisco, Mrs. B. M. Breeden, manager, will be opened on June 5th, when the first contingent of youngsters will come for a two weeks' stay to be followed by others. The outing is given to those having no means of having a vacation in the country. The society is doing noble work in providing this home for the boys and girls who are practically dependent. The good men and women engaged in this cause are to be commended.

Annual Picnic Sunday

The North Palo Alto Improvement Club will hold its annual picnic next Sunday on the M. I. Pier's farm on the Los Trancos creek, adjoining the Portola road. These annual outings of the people of North Palo Alto are happy events that are enjoyed by all.

Planning Commission Meets

The planning commission held a meeting last Monday evening at the city hall to discuss plans it has under consideration. Plans of the city are being prepared, preparatory to zoning Menlo Park into business, industrial and residential districts. When the work is completed a meeting of the citizens will be called to approve of the plan.

New Grammar School Site

Some time in the near future a citizen's meeting will be called to discuss the matter of purchasing a new grammar school site and providing means for a new building. The present site is in the business section and is rapidly becoming too valuable for school purposes, and then, too, a place further from the highway and railroad tracks would be preferable. Within the next five years the school will have to be moved so it would be well to secure an attractive acreage site now while land values are within reason for when that time arrives property prices will have risen to such an altitude that it will be almost impossible to secure a suitable one.

P. T. A. To Hold Food Sale

The Menlo Park P. T. A. will hold a food sale on Saturday, June 2, starting at 9 o'clock. The sale will be held on Santa Cruz avenue between the railroad tracks and the highway.

Death of Miss Annie Cochrane

Miss Annie Cochrane, a pioneer resident of San Rafael, passed away last Wednesday following a lingering illness. The deceased was well known in Menlo Park, having for over a quarter of a century visited her cousins, the Misses Lynch, at various intervals. She was highly esteemed and respected by all who knew her.

Mrs. Doughty Recovering

The numerous friends of Mrs. Harry Doughty will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from her recent operation for appendicitis at the Mills Memorial hospital and will soon return to her home.

Forty Hours Devotion

The Forty Hours Devotion will commence in the Church of the Nativity at the last mass on Sunday and continue for three days, during which the faithful will visit the church and take part in the impressive ceremony attending the devotion.

$30,000 Building Permits

Building Inspector Smith has issued permits in the past ten days amounting to $30,000. The permits are for modest dwellings in the residential district of Menlo Park.

Will Vacation in Canadian Rockies

Miss Cecelia Carleton is planning to spend her annual vacation in July in a trip through the Canadian Rockies. This trip is enjoyed by thousands of Americans every year.

Visitors Here

Mrs. James Casey and her young son are here on a visit to Mrs. Casey's parents.

Presbyterian Church

The postponed Sunday School picnic of the Menlo Park Presbyterian church will be held at Congress Springs tomorrow. The school will meet at the church at 8:30 a. m., where transportation will be provided.

Next Sunday being the Sunday preceding Memorial Day, the pastor will deliver a Memorial Day address, "What the Past Has Given Us." The subject of the evening sermon will be "Inheriting Eternal Life."

Children's Day, June 10, will be celebrated with a special program to be given by the Sunday School. A pageant, "The Rainbow of Promise," will be a special feature of the program.

CALIFORNIA

By DENIS A. MERZ, Menlo Park

California most beautiful state,
Glorious, sun-kissed all year around;
Thou art a "Jewel" of the golden gate.
Such as no other may be found.
Thou art indeed, of all the states the best,
Beloved and admired on sight;
Thy praises are sung from far east to west,
From level ground to mountain height.

Thy redwood trees, so monstrous and so high,
Thy mountains, fields and sparkling streams,
Thy beautiful climate, and thy blue skies
Compel to worship thee it seems.
Thy cities and towns, and thy great highways,
Thy orchards with fruit of the best,
Make thee worthy, yes, of highest praise,
And us, proud of the "Golden West."

We, who live in this sun-kissed Golden West
Ought to be thankful in our heart,
Of all things, we have the very best,
In this, our paradise on earth.
It's glorious to be alive and well,
In this, our country's finest state.
There are thousands more things I'd like to tell

Engineer Writes

On City Planning

Eastern Cities Finding That City Planning Pays Dividends

PERMANENT ASSET

Placing Community On Business Foundation

By Guy Wilfrid Hayler
City Planning Engineer

The decision of Menlo Park to put into effect a zoning ordinance in the newly incorporated city is a great progressive step because by that system of regulating development guarantees are given that the future city shall grow up on orderly lines.

The environment of Menlo Park not only demands safeguards that its residential values shall not be dissipated but that shall become the greatest or one of the greatest of the beautiful home communities of the peninsula.

Zoning will place the various types of buildings where they belong. What exists now cannot be removed except by the exigencies of time. The great majority of the erections are however of a distinctly temporary character and a period of from seven to ten years will see great changes as their usefulness declines.

It is really then that the advantages of zoning actually become apparent. The continuous changes throughout that time will eventually in substantial and harmonious groupings of buildings. Not only is this certain to occur but the newer building taking place in the hitherto unbuild upon tracts will be carried out with a sense of confidence.

Haphazard development with FOR SALE—Pen of White Rock and Anconas. 9 laying hens and rooster. Price reasonable. Phone 345-W or call 342 Elwood St. 1tp.
